I conducted a Miranda interview with [REDACTED], during which I asked him if the owner of the gun rang any bells to him, to which he responded that he did not, and he found the gun before the school day and brought it with him to protect himself from the streets. [REDACTED] stated that he was going to get rid of the gun after school today. We asked him again if he was given this gun by anybody at the school, to which he responded that he was not and he found it outside.

We asked [REDACTED] how he got into the school today, to which he responded that he walked in the normal way through the weapons detectors at Kalamazoo Central High School. I asked him if the weapon detectors went off, to which he responded that they did. He was then asked if he was searched, to which he said that he was, but they did not find it.

WEAPON DETECTOR TEST:

Chief DONALD WEBSTER of the Kalamazoo Public Schools campus safety placed the firearm into the gold Spraygrounds backpack and attempted to walk through the weapons detectors at Kalamazoo Central High School to test whether they would not go off. I want it to be noted that none of [REDACTED]'S Chromebook or notebooks were in the backpack during this test. WEBSTER stated that his test with the backpack and the firearm did make the weapon detector go off.
