9pm Nova

Can Dogs Talk?

Imagine a world where your furry best friend could tell you exactly what they're thinking. A growing number of dog owners claim this is already happening, thanks to innovative word buttons that seem to unlock a new realm of canine communication. But are these dogs truly understanding what we're saying - and talking back? Are they really thinking creatively, applying words in new contexts? Or is this just clever conditioning? To find out, scientists are conducting the largest animal communication study in history, analyzing millions of button presses from thousands of dogs worldwide. Witness astonishing moments that challenge our assumptions about animal intelligence, from dogs that seemingly engage in conversations to those who learn new words with incredible speed. Prepare to question everything you thought you knew about the minds of dogs and discover just how far their linguistic abilities might stretch.

11pm Big Ben Restored: The Grand Unveiling

The greatest clock tower in the world has undergone the most extraordinary and extensive renovation in history. Presiding over the House of Commons, Big Ben is not only the most iconic landmark on London's skyline but a timeless piece of architecture that symbolizes England's democratic heritage. Renamed Elizabeth Tower in 2012, this location world-renowned selfie spot with very few people allowed to see inside the world's most famous clock tower, apart from VIPs like Michelle Obama, Prince William and Bill Gates. BIG BEN RESTORED: THE GRAND UNVEILING grants the viewer rare access to document the restoration work that took place on the iconic clock tower. The project is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to explore the social and cultural history that the world's most famous clock tower represents, while charting the extraordinary craftsmanship of the people painstakingly bringing this grand monument back to life for future generations. Anna Keay, Director of Landmark Trust, goes behind-the-scenes with Parliament's principal architect and the three clock-makers who had the challenging task of taking the gigantic mechanism apart for the first time in nearly 160 years. The program also examines the history of the clock tower and reveals how it was almost never built in the first place! Using innovative filming techniques, the film delves into the rich history of Elizabeth Tower and reveals how a dedicated team of architects, engineers, clock makers, stonemasons, scaffolders and other craftspersons bring an iconic Victorian structure expertly and imaginatively into the 21st century. Follow the footsteps of all those involved: parliamentarian clock workers that ensured the clock was dismantled and assembled back correctly; the construction workers who took extra care to preserve and restore components; and the scientists and metal workers who discovered the true color of the clock dials and cast replacements for items that were damaged beyond repair. The vibrant new details are showcased, including a refurbished belfry with recalibrated bells - looking and sounding like new. To mark the completion of the restoration of the Elizabeth Tower (named for the late Queen Elizabeth II), the final part of the series shows the progress done over six years starting from 19 December 2016 when the first works began, to the point where the main part of the works were completed, and then to when Big Ben started chiming again.

9pm North to Freedom (WSKG)

The Underground Railroad is often romanticized with tales of hidden rooms, tunnels, and a few heroic figures, but its true history is far more complex and inspiring. North to Freedom, a 90-minute documentary from WSKG Public Media, peels back the myths to reveal the real stories of those who powered this movement. Written and produced by award-winning filmmaker Brian Frey, the film focuses on the pivotal role of Upstate New York, highlighting the contributions of Black leaders like John W. Jones and Jermain Loguen, alongside white allies such as Gerrit Smith, who worked to challenge the institution of slavery. Through richly woven narratives, North to Freedom shows how the Underground Railroad was driven not by physical structures but by human courage and solidarity. Towns like Elmira, Ithaca, and Peterboro became vital hubs for freedom seekers, sustained by trust, community, and carefully guarded secrecy. The film explores the connections between vigilance societies, abolitionist meetings, and the enduring strength of Black communities, whose leadership not only fueled the movement's growth but also pushed abolitionist allies to expand their efforts. Featuring dramatized readings crafted from selections of former slave narratives, expert insights from historians, and striking visuals of historic landmarks, North to Freedom challenges perceptions and reveals the biracial network built on trust, sacrifice, and collective resistance. But this is more than a historical account. North to Freedom highlights how, after years of neglect in teaching this history, communities today are reclaiming and celebrating the legacy of the Underground Railroad. By uncovering the stories of ordinary people and the communities that powered this movement, the film offers a deeper understanding of how they redefined the meaning of freedom and continue to inspire new generations.
