

KRWG
Las Cruces, NM
PBS Quarterly Program Topic Report
April 1, 2026 – June 30, 2026

KRWG-TV is the PBS station located in Las Cruces, New Mexico. We are licensed by New Mexico State University and our offices are located on NMSU's Las Cruces campus. KRWG-TV is proud to be the only television station in southern New Mexico. We also provide unique services in the El Paso, Texas/Las Cruces, New Mexico service area.

Through meetings with citizens and community leaders, partnerships with area newspapers and other organizations, and extensive production of news and public affairs programming, the staff of KRWG-TV has determined the following issues are of primary importance to our coverage area:

Health/Welfare/Safety – While the over-all crime rate is no higher than the national average, poverty and a higher than average teenage population contribute to a gang and crime problem. Poverty also results in health and welfare issues including an above average social services caseload and a high number of welfare cases handled by the local hospital.

Culture – The mix of Hispanic/Native American/ and Anglo cultures provide many positive attributes to life in southern New Mexico. Cultural and historical understanding is of great importance.

Business - With an above-average unemployment rate and a below-average income level, the status of the business/agricultural community in southern New Mexico is crucial. Concern over the constant issue of defense spending at the federal level is ongoing in this area due to the presence of several military and NAS installations. Dona Ana County is also actively seeking new businesses and a strong infrastructure exists near the Santa Teresa Border Crossing to boost border trade.

Politics/Public Affairs – Southern New Mexico and the United States have a wide variety of contentious political issues that are of constant interest to the citizens of the involved communities.

Education – With a constantly growing population of children, many of whom use Spanish as their primary language, the school systems in the KRWG-TV viewing area are constantly trying to provide facilities and teachers to meet this growing school age population with limited funds. New Mexico is one of the poorest per-capita states in the nation, which results in a chronic shortage of funds for local education.

Water/Environment – KRWG-TV is located in a desert with two major sources of water: the Rio Grande River and an aquifer that supplies drinking water to Las Cruces and surrounding areas in the Mesilla Valley. Water is the lifeblood of the region and conflicts are escalating over the requirements of a growing urban population and agriculture.

Segment Length: 00:49:26

He was boxy, with stumpy legs that wouldn't completely straighten, a short straggly tail and an ungainly gait, but though he didn't look the part, Seabiscuit was one of the most remarkable thoroughbred racehorses in history. In the 1930s, when Americans longed to escape the grim realities of the Depression-era life, four men turned Seabiscuit into a national hero. They were his fabulously wealthy owner Charles Howard, his famously silent and stubborn trainer Tom Smith, and the two hard-bitten, gifted jockeys who rode him to glory.

Segment Length: 00:00:00

American Experience: Woodstock: Three Days That Defined A Generation In August 1969, nearly half a million people gathered at a farm in upstate New York to hear music. What happened over the next three days, however, was far more than a concert. It would become a legendary event, one that would define a generation and mark the end of one of the most turbulent decades in modern history. Occurring just weeks after an American set foot on the moon, the Woodstock music festival took place against a backdrop of a nation in conflict over sexual politics, civil rights and the Vietnam War. A sense of an America in transition - a handoff of the country between generations with far different values and ideals - was tangibly present at what promoters billed as "An Aquarian Exposition: 3 Days of Peace and Music." Woodstock turns the lens back at the audience, at the swarming, impromptu city that grew up overnight on a few acres of farm land.

Length: 60 minutes
Airdate: 5/20/2026 7:00:00 PM
Service: PBS-NPS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

David Attenborough presents seven of the most remarkable animal songs found in nature and explores the significance of these songs in the lives of their species. Each one - from the song of the largest lemur to the song of the humpback whale to the song of the lyrebird - was recorded in his lifetime. But will they soon be heard no more? Contrary to Charles Darwin's theory of sexual selection, a new generation of scientists have discovered that animal song is not just the preserve of males. Females sing too. But there are also fears that we do not have much longer to hear them. Because as humankind gets noisier, the rest of the planet is falling silent. Joyous, surprising and poignant, this story of pioneering research and astounding insight is a chorus of wonder  and a wake-up call.

4/2 Fronteras 1604 - Author Philip Connors

Borderland author Philip Connors joins Susan Morée to talk about his latest book, The Mountain Knows the Mountain: A Fire Watch Diary and what it's like to be one of the last remaining fire lookouts in the national forest.

4/9 Fronteras 1605 - Dr. David DuBois state climatologist

26:16

Colorado just had its worst snowpack since statewide recordkeeping began in 1941. Even more troubling, mountain snow accumulations peaked a month early and contained just half the average moisture. As a warm winter gave way to early springtime record heat, snow is vanishing from all but the highest elevations in the West. That has the region bracing for the impact on water availability and a potentially explosive fire season. On this episode of "Fronteras: A Changing America", KC Counts speaks with State Climatologist Dr. David DuBois about all of this and how it might impact our region.

4/16 Fronteras 1606 - Public Health

The growing number of places people go to for information has made it easier for mis and disinformation to spread at a never-before-seen speed and scale. Misinformation spreads especially easily on social media and online retail sites, as well as via search engines. Health misinformation has also led to harassment and even violence against health professionals, airline staff, and other frontline workers tasked with communicating evolving public health measures, according the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. On this episode of "Fronteras: A Changing America", KC Counts speaks with two professors at NMSU who are conducting research on this topic. We'll hear from NMSU Professor of Public Health Dr. Jagdish Khubchandani and Professor and Associate Dean of the NMSU Graduate School, Dr. Karen Kopera-Frye.

4/23 Fronteras 1607 - Economy and Iran War

NMSU Professor of Economics and Director of the Center for Border Economic Development Dr. Chris Erickson joins KC Counts to explain how the war in Iran is impacting the economy locally and worldwide and to discuss how the Trump administration's tax policy is impacting everyday Americans.

4/25 Music Spotlight 704 - Santana Garcia

23:30

On the next Music Spotlight we feature Santana Garcia, who is a guitarist/composer born and raised near Anthony, New Mexico. His finger-style acoustic playing has evolved from Midwest-emo roots and punk.

4/30 Fronteras 1608 - Cruces Creatives

Cruces Creatives Executive Director Lea Wise-Surguy and Sustainability Director Patrick DeSimio join KC Counts to talk about providing a makerspace, education and sustainability in the community.

5/21 Cooking with Chef Tom: Grillin' & Chillin' 2026

On this next episode of Cooking with Chef Tom, this episode features tips and tricks for grilling and chilling this summer.

5/23 Music Spotlight 705 - Randy Lynch

28:18

On this Music Spotlight we speak to Randy Lynch a Las Cruces singer/songwriter who calls himself "a country music revivalist and a haunted southwestern troubadour." He's a relative newcomer to the music scene, who started writing lyrics in 2019 after emerging from a year-long depression following the end of his marriage, and began playing around town two years later. His latest EP is titled "Haunted."

5/28 ELECTION 2026 Democratic Primary - Secretary of State

This week on New Mexico in Focus, we catch up to some of the biggest recent headlines with the local journalists who broke and kept an eye on those stories.

Santa Fe New Mexican city reporter Carina Julig wrote a deep-dive series about Urban Alchemy's first year running the capital city's homeless shelter. Six months in, Urban Alchemy has spent nearly all of the $1.5 million allocated in its one-year emergency contract. Senior Producer Lou Divizio sat down with Julig to discuss the nonprofit's financial dealings. Later, Lou asks Julig how the nonprofit's community services stack up to its additional $7.9 million outreach contract.

Reporter Patrick Lohmann's byline is all over the home page of Source New Mexico, a nonprofit digital outlet that covers state news. Host Nash Jones asks Lohmann to run through three ongoing stories he's covered: immigrant detention, uranium mining and the State Fairgrounds.

The Public Service Company of New Mexico, or PNM, and its parent company filed an application last year with state regulators to be acquired by Blackstone Infrastructure, the nation's largest private equity firm. Ten months later, that sale is still pending. Albuquerque Journal Staff Writer Justin Horwath has covered the acquisition process. Horwath talks to Executive Producer Jeff Proctor about the potential purchase and what an approved acquisition would mean for New Mexicans who receive their electrical power from PNM.

This week on New Mexico in Focus, we take a deep dive into new public safety leadership at the City of Albuquerque. Police Chief Cecily Barker talks about her 20-year career with the Albuquerque Police Department and how she differs from the previous chief, Harold Medina. Public Safety Director Raul Bujanda talks about coordination between Albuquerque's police, fire and community safety departments. Daniel Williams, a policy advocate with ACLU of New Mexico, gives his thoughts on the city's new leaders.

Late last month, Albuquerque Mayor Tim Keller appointed Cecily Barker as his new police chief. Barker has spent more than 20 years on the force, has served several months as interim chief and is the first woman to hold the position. Host Nash Jones spoke with Barker about her path to the top spot. Later, Barker explains how she plans to win back the public's trust in the city's police department.

Keller also named Raul Bujanda to be the city's public safety director. Bujanda talks with Nash about the resurrected role and how his experience as an FBI agent will inform his work. Then, Bujanda breaks down why it's important for Albuquerque's police, fire and community safety departments to better coordinate their work.

For years, the New Mexico affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union has kept a close eye on the Albuquerque Police Department. Now 11 months out from federal oversight of the department ending, policy advocate Daniel Williams sat down with Executive Producer Jeff Proctor to discuss how new leadership could help uphold recent reforms.

Host Nash Jones spoke with the congresswoman about the war in Iran and the position she and her Democratic colleagues are in as the minority party in a Congress that never formally authorized military action in the first place. Leger Fernandez also spoke about the Trump administration's plans to roll back protections for public lands in her district.

A month has passed since a New York Times investigation revealed decades of alleged sexual abuse and child rape by Cesar Chavez, reigniting thorny conversations around the Chicano labor organizer's legacy. In Focus reporter Cailley Chella delves into what that's looked like in New Mexico — home state of fellow labor leader Dolores Huerta, who's now disclosed her own account of Chavez raping her — and a generational divide that emerged in her reporting.

We run through the latest on some eye-popping campaign finance numbers in the gubernatorial race. We also review a grim forecast for this year's fire season.

Last week, we dove deep on the new leadership at the Albuquerque Police Department. Daniel Williams, a policy advocate with the ACLU of New Mexico, had a civil rights-focused conversation with Executive Producer Jeff Proctor on the police department's new top brass. This week, we pick back up with Williams and Proctor chatting about privacy concerns surrounding police use of technology and surveillance tools.

This week on New Mexico in Focus, we head to the Institute of American Indian Arts. For the second time in as many years, the institute's future is uncertain as President Trump threatens to cut billions in funding for higher education, including more than $350 million from minority-serving programs. That puts IAIA squarely in the crosshairs. President Shelly Loew spoke to host Nash Jones about her first year leading the college, whether she expects Congress to reject Trump's cuts again, and how this financial uncertainty has affected her students.

Executive Producer Jeff Proctor sits down with constitutional and international law expert Joshua Kastenber to delve into the war in Iran — how it began and how it's going. Proctor asks the law professor and former Judge Advocate General how war crimes are defined — and by whom — and to consider whether he has seen any evidence of Trump or the U.S. military committing them in Iran.

Earlier this month, a state District Court judge ordered Republican state Rep. Rebecca Dow to be removed from the ballot following allegations she had filed flawed paperwork in her reelection bid. Earlier this week, the state Supreme Court reversed that decision and reinstated Dow's candidacy. We hear from Dow just moments after the justices ordered her back on the ballot.

In March, UNM named Ryan Berryman to be its next athletics director. Berryman has been connected to Lobo sports since he was a teenager and, at 32, is one of the youngest ADs in Division I sports. The Albuquerque Journal's Geoff Grammer joins Senior Producer Lou DiVizio to discuss the new department head and consider what Berryman's tenure could mean for the Lobos on the football field, the basketball court — and beyond.

This week on New Mexico in Focus, state Environment Secretary James Kenney visits our Albuquerque studio to explain new state regulations on PFAS, or “forever chemicals.” Several areas in the state have seen PFAS contamination, including sites around Holloman and Kirtland

Air Force bases where toxic firefighting foam was used for years. Runoff from the foam contaminated area groundwater, as reported by former Our Land producer and reporter Laura Paskus.

Amid decades of economic decline following coal mine closures, the city of Raton is working to use the great outdoors as a more sustainable economic engine. Correspondent Elizabeth Miller takes us to the northern New Mexico town to learn about its history and how a multi-state effort to connect public lands for outdoor rec prioritizes conservation.

The Albuquerque Journal published a poll over the weekend by Research and Polling, Inc. It found former congresswoman and Interior secretary Deb Haaland way ahead of Bernalillo County District Attorney Sam Bregman, with 52% of proven Democratic and independent voters planning to vote for Haaland, and 30% for Bregman. Pollster Brian Sanderoff explains his methodology and the demographics where each candidate scored best.

Mark Fine of the local charitable group Dukes Up chats with NMPBS Executive Producer for Public Affairs Jeff Proctor about the organization's Democratic primary debate for the governor's race. Fine explains the mission of Dukes Up and the group's intention to create a forum for New Mexico citizens to judge the candidates and their positions. NMPBS is serving as the broadcast partner for the debate, airing Thursday, May 7 on channel 5.1.

In the latest episode of Indigenously Positive, reporter Bella Davis visits the Mescalero Apache reservation to learn how high school students are creating wildfire and flood sensors to protect their community from natural disasters. Indigenously Positive is a collaborative series from NMPBS and nonprofit newsroom New Mexico In Depth telling joyful stories from Native communities around our state.

This week on New Mexico in Focus, two Republican primary candidates make their case to be the next governor of New Mexico. Small business owner and charter school advocate Doug Turner tells Host Nash Jones why public education reform is near the top of his priority list. Then, cannabis CEO and former state cabinet secretary Duke Rodriguez talks to politics correspondent Gwyneth Doland about healthcare and his campaign's flagging support. Former Rio Rancho mayor Gregg Hull cancelled his scheduled interview.

A recent poll published by the Albuquerque Journal found that Hull leads the pack, while a huge number of proven Republican and independent voters remain undecided. Pollster Brian Sanderoff spoke with Nash about the latest numbers.

Greg Payne, a former Republican state representative, sits down with Nash and helps us handicap the contest.

KRWG-FM Las Cruces, New Mexico
KRXG-FM Silver City, New Mexico
Quarterly Program Topic Report
2nd quarter, 2026

Through meetings with local community leaders, review of area newspapers and other publications, and production of daily newscasts (Monday-Friday), the staff of KRWG-FM/KRXG-FM has determined that the following issues are of primary importance to the citizens within our coverage area:

1. Arts, Entertainment, and Culture – The mix of Hispanic/Native American/ and Anglo cultures provide many positive attributes to life in southern New Mexico. However, this same mix results in an on-going undercurrent of conflict among the cultures. Cultural and historical understanding is of on-going importance in this area. The area includes a diverse mix of arts and entertainment, including local musicians and performance venues and efforts to build a film industry.

2. Business, Economic Development, Environment - With an above-average unemployment rate and a below-average income level, the status of the business/agricultural community in southern New Mexico is an important issue. Concern over the constant issue of defense spending at the federal level is ongoing in this area due to the presence of several military and NASA installations. Dona Ana County is also actively seeking new businesses and a strong infrastructure exists near the Santa Teresa Border Crossing, which is also a source of news and related issues. Environmental concerns are often at odds with economic development pressures.

3. Local Public Affairs and Education– Southern New Mexico has very intensive governance and political issues that are of constant interest to the citizens of the involved communities, which include a variety of elected and appointed officials. The area is also making efforts to improve education and has a variety of elected school boards.

Stories placed in these three main categories are broadcast on local newscasts each weekday (Monday-Friday) at 645, 745, 845, 1644, 1748, and 1844.

Story descriptions and broadcast time(s) are listed on the upcoming pages by topic area.
