The crowdsourced staff database is similar to "Our goal is to add more perspectives to the discussions that drive coverage in newsrooms," Campoy writes in this NiemanReports story that they have been crowdsourcing a database of. Fellowships are open to anyone above the age of 18 from around the world. Potential project ideas could include devising new strategies or models to solve a problem. The Reynolds Journalism Institute is accepting applications for its 2021-22 RJI Fellowship. The funds can be used for a number of resources, including language translation, protective. "belonging. The event is offered by Reynolds, co-executive director of the Maynard Institute. experiences as the only Latina in. Group, has to say about her first. Resource center. a project by Chalkbeat, and Our good company include ProPublica's collaborative journalism effort. Country." We were honored to be included in this recent story by Mark Glaser of Trust, Media and. Q: What lessons can you share for others? Mountain West News Bureau's managing editor using what they heard at these sessions to inform an investigation into police-involved. The Mountain West News. We're Engaged! It's important to listen to our communities early in the reporting process, because these. borders to other countries who do not see the same level of civilian fatalities to see what. community-level solutions although we did hear that the U.S. should look outside its. falls to police. The current conversations around police. They got into the field because they want to serve. Law enforcement officers who joined our session feel unheard and often undervalued in the. We held another virtual session for community members from across the region to share. We invited law enforcement officers from across the region to join us for a virtual listening. despite having similar demographics, gun ownership, crime and other challenges. The landing page will highlight your most popular tweets by month. Click on the "view. you're gaining each. Want to know what. T O D A Y ' S Did you stumble upon us and find us awesome? Please join our list, we're happy you're here! America Amplified is supported by a grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Did you stumble upon us and find us awesome? Please join our list, we're happy you're here!