We're halfway through!

Here's what we've accomplished.

- We've hosted webinar series with Nikole Hannah-Jones at The New York Times and Professor David G. Wilson of Oregon State University on anti-racist journalism.
- We're tracking voting problems happening across the country. And it's all free!
- We've launched a Resource Center that's a one-stop-shop for local newsrooms covering the election.

Participating newsrooms will have access to a private Slack group, data, real-time and collaborative journalism, misinformation, long lines, voting equipment, and more.

The collaborative journalism effort is looking for local newsrooms dedicating resources to monitor voting problems during the election. If you are already covering or planning to cover the election, please apply to be part of this effort.

Vision25 hosts webinar with Nikole Hannah-Jones

Nikole Hannah-Jones has been named a collaborator for Vision25, and is hosting a webinar series about anti-racist journalism. The webinar will cover the importance of anti-racist journalism in the 21st century, the impact of racism on newsrooms, and strategies for creating more inclusive newsrooms.

Register here.

America Amplified is supported by a grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Support for America Amplified from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting is provided through the CPB Listening Post program with the goal of providing stations with resources to support their local communities.

America Amplified is a production of WUSF Public Media in partnership with the Maynard Institute and the Online News Association, with additional support from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Subscribe to our newsletter, Today's Tip. Sign up and let us know what you think.

We're Engaged!

We're here to help you get the most out of America Amplified. Whether you're interested in anti-racist journalism, voter education, or community media, we've got you covered.

Check out our tips and resources for ways to engage and collaborate with your community.

Resource center

We've got the tools you need to create a better future for your community. From engagement reporting to anti-racist journalism, we've got it all.

Get more of us on social.