KCCU Quarterly Issues and Programs Report
FY 2026 Q2 April 1 to June 30

KCCU is a vital non-commercial educational radio station licensed to Cameron University in Lawton, Oklahoma, and simulcasts on KLCU-Ardmore, Oklahoma, KMCU-Wichita Falls, Texas, and KOCU-Altus, Oklahoma.

National and Local Programming:
KCCU delivers a diverse array of locally and regionally produced programs, public service announcements, live classical music, and specialty shows daily. Local programs include Community Focus, Mary McClure's Slice of Life, StateImpact Oklahoma, and CU Today. The station features premier national programs in public media, including Morning Edition, All Things Considered, and Performance Today.

KCCU broadcasts 48 hours per week of NPR news programs. Additionally, it includes 30 minutes per week of Texas Matters, a news program highlighting the news and cultural events in Texas. The station also airs a local weekly public affairs program, StateImpact Oklahoma, and Community Focus, which explores issues and culture in Oklahoma. The station also broadcasts daily weather updates and severe weather coverage.

KCCU also broadcasts CU Today, hosted by Cameron University President Dr. Shane Hunt. The program airs once a month and highlights students and teachers from Cameron and discusses their involvement not only on campus but throughout our community.

Below is a list of significant issues addressed by the station, along with the most impactful programming treatments of those issues for the quarter. This list is not exhaustive, and the order of issues is chronological by date and does not indicate priority or significance. Details can be found in this file, which contains locally originated programming that also addresses other issues important to our community. Total Accumulated Time: 188h:31m:10s

Texas Matters is a public affairs program that airs Monday at 6:30 pm. Texas Matters is a statewide news program that spends half an hour each week looking at the issues and culture of Texas.

Politics / Culture	Texas Matters: A populist history of Texas	This week on Texas Matters — The story of Texas that we typically hear is one with a conservative bias. But there are parts of Texas history that reflect a more progressive vein of the state's identity. Stories of the fence cutters, the great cowboy strike and the struggle against the power of big business. The new book "The Myth of Red Texas: Cowboys, Populism, and Class War in the Radical South" challenges the common view of Texas history.	April 6	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Politics	Texas Matters: Sharia law rhetoric, abortion care fallout, and a contested death row case	This week on Texas Matters: Why "Sharia law" has become a flashpoint in Texas politics. How the state's abortion ban is tied to new scrutiny after three doctors were disciplined. And why a Texas death row case still hinges on hypnosis, despite the practice being banned in criminal investigations in the state.	April 13	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Immigration	Texas Matters: SB4 is blocked, and West Texas border wall moves forward	This week on Texas Matters: Sections of SB4 are blocked — which would have allowed local police to arrest suspected illegal border crossers. And Despite outcry in West Texas the efforts to build the border wall in Big Bend Country continues.	April 20	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Politics	James Talarico and the race for U.S. Senate	This week on Texas Matters we hear from the Democratic nominee for Senate — James Talarico. We also hear from Scott Braddock about the race between Talarico and Republican Ken Paxton.	May 4	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Environment / Politics	Texas Matters: Watering down FEMA, abortion pill access, Texas prisons' compassionate release	This week on Texas Matters: How the Trump administration is watering down FEMA. The prison system's compassionate release program is called a "failure." The threat to mail access to	May 11	6:30 PM	30 Min.

	and questions about Texas ocean desal	the abortion pill. And Texas is preparing to go all in on ocean desal.
Texas Politics/Culture	Texas Matters: Pass The Biscuits, Pappy - Part Two	“Pass the Politics Pappy” explores the remarkable political rise of W. Lee "Pappy" O'Daniel, a flour salesman who used his popular radio show and catchy slogans to rocket into becoming Texas Governor and then U.S. Senator in the late 1930s and 1940s. Part 2 of the series focuses on O'Daniel's time as governor and delivered very little on his grand promises. Ultimately O’Daniel’s story serves as a cautionary tale of media-driven political populism.	May 18	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Environment / Natural Resources	Protecting your trees from oak wilt	In San Antonio oak trees can stand majestic and add to a home's property value. But they are vulnerable to oak wilt, a fast-moving disease that can spread quickly and kill entire clusters of oaks. It can be devastating. Learn how to protect your tress against oak wilt.	June 1	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Immigration	Texas Matters: Canadian mother says Dilley ICE detention center is a 'prison,' not a family facility	The ICE detention center in Dilley, Texas, is again at the center of a national fight over the detention of migrant families and children. But for Tania Warner, the controversy is not abstract. It is something she says she lived through with her 7-year-old daughter.	June 8	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Environment / Farm-Ranch Issues	Texas Matters: TX Ag Commissioner Sid Miller blasts screwworm response and why Texas isn't producing more oil	Texas Agriculture Commissioner Sid Miller says the screwworm will continue to spread unless officials adopt a more aggressive response. Also, energy economist Ed Hirs says Texas oil producers are not significantly increasing production despite higher oil prices.	June 15	6:30 PM	30 Min.
Environment / Public Safety	Texas Matters: 'After the Flood' tells the story of the deadly 2025 Hill Country floods	The Texas Newsroom and FRONTLINE (PBS) are collaborating on a new five-part podcast series, After the Flood, an intimate and deeply reported look at the catastrophic Central Texas flooding that killed more than 130 people over the Fourth of July weekend in 2025. Issue	Story	Summary	Date	Aired	Duration
Environment	Oklahoma author celebrates state's thousands of plant and animal species in new book	Oklahoma's natural world is the subject of a new book from author Priscilla Crawford.	June 26	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Healthcare / Economics	NewView is the largest employer of blind and visually impaired Oklahomans. The nonprofit has been around for more than 75 years, but as StateImpact Oklahoma's Sierra	NewView is the largest employer of blind and visually impaired Oklahomans. The nonprofit has been around for more than 75 years, but as StateImpact Oklahoma's Sierra Pfeifer reports, turbulence at the federal level is hurting its bottom line.	June 19	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.

	Pfeifer reports, turbulence at the federal level is hurting its bottom line.
Economy / Politics / Healthcare	The cost of childcare is too high for many Oklahoma families. How are lawmakers responding?	Childcare costs are soaring. Infant care at childcare centers rose 27% from 2023 to 2025, according to the Oklahoma Partnership for School Readiness.	June 12	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Environment	What a small forest animal can tell us about Oklahoma's environment	From below the forest floor to above the tree canopy, the Ouachita National Forest in southeastern Oklahoma is teeming with life. But some animals are harder to spot than others. StateImpact's Chloe Bennett-Steele joins surveyors as they track what they call a secretive species.	June 5	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
State Politics /	StateImpact Oklahoma reporters sum up the 2026 legislative session	The 2026 legislative session has come to end. Logan Layden talked with StateImpact Oklahoma reporters about their takeaways on legislation impacting education, health, science and the environment.	May 22	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Healthcare / Politics	Federal rural hospital program offers a lifeline in Oklahoma, but hurdles remain	Three years ago, a new federal designation for rural hospitals went into effect, allowing facilities to receive enhanced support for outpatient and emergency services if they gave up their more expensive inpatient care.The rural emergency hospital provider type is meant to support small rural facilities amid challenges like lower volume, aging populations and rising costs. As the designation gains traction in Oklahoma, some providers said it has become a lifeline for their facilities, which would otherwise close. But critics argue there is a need for other solutions.	May 15	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Healthcare / Politics	'We are dismayed:' Oklahoma doctors, patients respond to potential changes to Medicaid expansion	Oklahoma Republicans want to send Medicaid expansion back to voters so lawmakers can have more control in addressing spending. But medical and policy experts worry the effort is shortsighted.	May 8	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Education / Politics	Another battle is brewing over public funds for religious schools. Oklahoma Jewish leaders are uneasy	Oklahoma is again ground zero for a battle over publicly funded religious education as a proposed Jewish charter school looks to the courts for vindication. That's despite members of the state's Jewish community saying they weren't consulted and are "deeply concerned" about the threat to the separation of church and state.	May 1	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Education	Divorcing from usual process, Oklahoma Board of Education rewrites dozens of social studies standards.	Some educators are raising concerns about content in the newly approved, proposed 2026 academic standards for social studies — and the process by which the standards were revised.	April 24	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Environment	What a super El Niño could mean for Oklahoma's weather	Following a much dryer and warmer than normal winter in Oklahoma, the possibility of a so-called super El Niño is in the forecast for later this year. StateImpact's Logan Layden talks with	April 17	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.

		State Climatologist Gary McManus about what that could mean for the state.
Healthcare	'Like a gym membership. An Oklahoma provider explains a growing primary care model	An increasing number of providers and patients are participating in direct primary care. It's not insurance, but rather a business model where patients can purchase a membership, allowing them unlimited access to certain primary care services. Dr. Kyle Rickner is the co-founder of Primary Health Partners, which is Oklahoma's largest direct primary care provider. StateImpact's Jillian Taylor spoke with him about the growing model, which also benefited from President Donald Trump's 2025 megabill.	April 10	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
Enivornment	An Oklahoma family says oil is polluting their home. The state says its hands are tied.	A fluid leak has created a months-long dispute between a family and regulators over what the state can do to remediate what the family says is oil seeping into their home	April 3	5:45 am 6:45 am 7:45 am	5 Min.
