BLACK AND JEWISH AMERICA

AN INTERWOVEN HISTORY

This four-part docuseries explores the complex relationship between Black Americans and Jewish Americans. Hosted by Dr. Henry Louis Gates, Jr., the series traces how the two communities that began on very different footing were drawn together in the early 20th century by entrenched racism and rising antisemitism.

These shared experiences led to productive civic partnerships and creative collaborations in music and film that helped shape American popular culture.

The relationship deepened after World War II, as the horrors of the Holocaust reinforced a sense of common struggle. The civil rights era marked a high point, when Jewish Americans worked closely with Black leaders to dismantle Jim Crow segregation. The series also examines how this historic alliance fractured as social and political realities shifted, and as each community turned inward in an increasingly divided America.

Land with No Rider

In the rugged reaches of southwestern New Mexico, four aging cattle ranchers face a vanishing way of life. Set in the Mimbres River Valley, Land with No Rider is a quietly powerful portrait of the last New Mexico cowboys, living between protected wilderness and industrial land as drought, policy, and time reshape their world. Through intimate conversations, the film captures daily rituals such as listening to snow fall, tending cattle at dusk, and singing along to the radio. This poetic 90-minute documentary reimagines cowboy life as an act of resilience, stewardship, and quiet resistance in a fragile land.

In celebration of Black History month, Everlasting, a two-part series, honors the life, work, and impact of one of Mississippi's most courageous voices, who was assassinated outside his home in 1963. Originally from Decatur, Mississippi, Medgar Evers played a pivotal role in the civil rights movement as the state's first field secretary for the NAACP. He organized voter registration drives, investigated acts of racial violence, and advocated for the desegregation of public institutions. The film traces the lasting impact of his work — and his death — on his family and the nation.

Parenthood

Five-Part Series

Animal parents are just like us in one powerful way. They are fiercely protective of their young, raising them against all odds in a variety of environments. Filmed over three years on six continents and in 23 countries, this five-part series narrated by Sir David Attenborough reveals how animals use remarkable strategies and ingenuity to help their offspring survive and thrive.

From orcas teaching their young to hunt blue whales, to orangutans showing their offspring how to make their beds, to hippo families navigating the terrifying African night, Parenthood captures the extraordinary dedication, clever tricks, and resilience of animal parents, making every moment an unforgettable adventure.

The Quest for Camelot

Can the stories about King Arthur be proven true? Was the legendary court of Camelot a real place? Professor Mark Horton travels across Britain, examining medieval texts and archaeological sites in search of the real events and places that may have inspired the chivalric myths. Horton uncovers clues that shed new light on the origins of Arthurian tales and what life was really like in the so-called Dark Ages.

This two-part documentary re-examines history as it reveals the secrets of the families who were forced to convert or flee during the Spanish and Portuguese Inquisitions (1478-1834). These families' stories are told by a diverse, multiracial cast of their contemporary descendants, many of whom are just discovering their once Jewish roots. Their complex journeys across continents and oceans with ever-changing names and identities are masterfully described in the film by the leading historians of the Sephardic diaspora. The film spotlights the surprising diversity of the Jewish diaspora.

3-3 America's Heartland

This documentary tells the story of the youth-led movement of nonviolent resistance to the Vietnam War, sparked when one man publicly burned his draft card in protest. At a time when American men were required to carry their draft card at all times, thousands chose principle over compliance, facing imprisonment for saying no, while countless others served in combat and made profound sacrifices.

The film explores the antiwar movement alongside the broader context of the war and the experiences of veterans. It examines how these acts of civil disobedience helped shape movements for peace and social justice, offering a fuller picture of this pivotal chapter in American history.

Can Dogs Talk?

Could your dog actually talk? Some dog owners are using special buttons labeled with words that dogs can press to "speak," but are they really communicating or just trained to push buttons? Scientists are conducting the largest study of canine communication ever, analyzing millions of button presses from thousands of dogs. Witness dogs that appear to converse and learn new words with astonishing speed, challenging everything we thought we knew about their intelligence.

Mammal Origins

Fossils reveal that mammals began more than 200 million years ago, long before the dinosaurs' reign, with early ancestors called therapsids developing key traits such as burrowing and warm-bloodedness. These resilient creatures survived global catastrophes, outlived giant competitors, and laid the groundwork for the diverse mammals we know today, including humans. In this episode, paleontology and cutting-edge science uncover the surprising story of mammal survival and evolution.

Stone Age Temple Mystery

Göbekli Tepe, the world's oldest known temple complex at 11,000 years old, remains one of archaeology's greatest mysteries. Built by hunter-gatherers 6,000 years before Stonehenge, it reveals a sophisticated society capable of organizing massive construction and complex religious sites. The discovery of Göbekli Tepe rewrites history by showing complex religious structures emerged before settled agriculture. This episode of Nova uncovers the ingenuity, beliefs, and organization of humanity's earliest builders.

Marked Man: Martin Luther King and the FBI

This documentary explores the fraught relationship between Martin Luther King Jr. and J. Edgar Hoover, the powerful and feared head of the FBI. Throughout the 1960s, Hoover viewed King as a dangerous threat, convinced he was influenced by Communists and determined to undermine America. Under Hoover's direction, the FBI carried out an aggressive campaign of surveillance and intimidation, tracking King's movements and even sending threatening letters that urged him to take his own life. Through this chilling history, the film reveals the depth of Hoover's vendetta, the stark contrast between King's commitment to peaceful change and Hoover's resistance to it, and the lasting consequences of the latter's unchecked power in American society.

District of Second Chances

A powerful story of redemption unfolds in Washington, D.C., where forward-looking Second Chance legislation gives people sentenced to life in prison as youths a chance to plead for release. The film follows Anthony "Pete" Petty, newly freed after three decades and rebuilding his life; Gene Downing, awaiting his second chance hearing, and Colie Levar Long, mentoring young people incarcerated with him. D.C. is leading a transformational criminal justice movement spreading across the country, but as the film reveals, a second chance is never guaranteed. This film captures courage, resilience, and the human cost of hope deferred and restored.

FORGOTTEN WAR The Struggle for North America

Two-hundred and fifty years ago, three powers clashed in an epic struggle for North America. Often overshadowed by the American Revolution, the French and Indian War (1754-1763) determined which great European empire would control the Ohio River Valley, the gateway to the West, and the crucial highway of rivers and lakes connecting New York and Montreal. Forgotten War focuses on the time period known as the “Five Year War” (1755-1760) and recounts the little-known story of how the Indian nations of the Northeast controlled the outcome of this war. A panel of experts digs beneath the familiar history and sheds new light on this long-ago conflict. The documentary follows the fates of the Abenaki and Iroquois people, separates fact from the myth of Robert Rogers and his legendary Rangers and chronicles the “massacre” at Fort William Henry, the battles of Fort Ticonderoga and Crown Point, the tragic expulsion of the Acadians, and the fall of Quebec and Montreal.

Sun Ra

Do the Impossible

Poet, philosopher, and jazz visionary Sun Ra defied every convention of music and identity. This illuminating biography traces his life from Birmingham, Alabama, to the outer reaches of his cosmic imagination. With his band, the Arkestra, Sun Ra reshaped jazz, explored electronic sound, and reimagined musical tradition on his own terms. Featuring rare performance footage and Sun Ra's own reflections, the film reveals a singular artist who challenged audiences to imagine a freer, bolder world.

This show is about Phoebe and Jay, two of the most curiously charismatic twins you've ever met. They are new to the Tobsy Towers where their dad just accepted a job as building superintendent and their grandmother works as a security guard. The Tobsy Towers seem backwards and dilapidated, but they were actually built by a genius architect who wanted to help his community. Although things seem wonky and unkempt, Phoebe and Jay's new neighborhood is full of adventure and hidden gems.

This film documentary offers a gripping, human look at the growing wave of book bans across the United States. The Librarians follows a courageous network of librarians as public libraries become the front lines in a national battle over intellectual freedom, democratic values, and First Amendment rights.

Sparked by Texas' controversial Krause List, which targets 850 books focused on race and LGBTQIA+ stories, the movement has triggered sweeping censorship efforts nationwide at an unprecedented pace. Facing harassment and laws that criminalize their work, librarians emerge as first responders in the fight for the freedom to read.

I'm Goin' Home

I'm Goin' Home tells a previously untold story of one enslaved person's perilous journey to freedom on the Underground Railroad. It follows his 400-mile trek from Senator Henry Clay's Ashland Estate in Lexington, Kentucky to safety in Canada and honors the brave men and women who risked everything to help him along the way. Through this powerful account, the film also reveals the deep injustices, economic forces, and political realities of slavery in America.
