TODAY’S TIP:
If you’re not already using Otter, an online transcription service, you should be! It’s free to use, easy to integrate into Zoom meetings, and perfect to check-in with the national listening sessions on August 12.

Did you stumble upon us and find us awesome?

Access our past newsletters

I want to sign up

American Empowered is supported by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

America Amplified is supported by a grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

We’re hosting national listening sessions! Starting the third week of August, America Amplified will launch the tenth in a series of virtual national listening sessions to bring people together to listen to one another, and remove the isolation of loss. The team at KQED commits to reading every of the diaries were recorded by the diarists themselves. She also works to include them in the projects reporter, says all but one of

Some of the people featured in KOSU's audio diaries

KOSU’s series of audio diaries

Kateleigh Mills, KOSU’s special

KQED's COVID-19 remembrance project

In California, more than 10,000 people have died from COVID-19. KQED in San Francisco is offering a way for the Bay Area to memorialize its victims by asking for tributes.

One of the people featured in KQED's audio diaries

We also love this piece of wisdom: “You want your individual to take ownership of their story and to come away feeling like the final product is something completely them.”

KQED’s COVID-19 remembrance project

The station is also asking for submissions in Spanish.

Read our post to see the details.

Reminder: NFCB webinar is today!

The National Federation of Community Broadcasters is hosting a webinar today, Aug. 12, titled: "Racism, COVID & Climate: Media Activism + Duty in an Election Year."

The session will feature a panel of community and public media trailblazers to talk about strategies for media organizers to bring clarity, fight misinformation, and protect the public interest in these times.

The app was developed in Brazil.

Check out this page

Reminder: NFCB webinar is today!

The session is at 3 p.m. ET today.

Access our past newsletters

Did you stumble upon us and find us awesome?

Some of the people featured in KOSU's audio diaries

You can transcribe a meeting and be able to use Otter functionalities like transcription per month, but uploads are limited to a max of 40 minutes each.

Some of the people featured in KQED's audio diaries

If you want to try out Otter, there's a free version that allows for up to 600 minutes of searching for keywords or live note-taking.

To our email list.

We’re hosting national listening sessions! Starting the third week of August, America Amplified will launch the tenth in a series of virtual national listening sessions to bring people together to listen to one another, and remove the isolation of loss. The team at KQED commits to reading every of the diaries were recorded by the diarists themselves. She also works to include them in the projects reporter, says all but one of

Some of the people featured in KQED's audio diaries

KQED’s COVID-19 remembrance project

In California, more than 10,000 people have died from COVID-19. KQED in San Francisco is offering a way for the Bay Area to memorialize its victims by asking for tributes.

One of the people featured in KOSU's audio diaries

We also love this piece of wisdom: “You want your individual to take ownership of their story
and to come away feeling like the final product is something completely them.”

KQED’s COVID-19 remembrance project

The station is also asking for submissions in Spanish.

Read our post to see the details.

Reminder: NFCB webinar is today!

The National Federation of Community Broadcasters is hosting a webinar today, Aug. 12, titled: "Racism, COVID & Climate: Media Activism + Duty in an Election Year."

The session will feature a panel of community and public media trailblazers to talk about strategies for media organizers to bring clarity, fight misinformation, and protect the public interest in these times.

The app was developed in Brazil.

Check out this page

Reminder: NFCB webinar is today!

The session is at 3 p.m. ET today.

Access our past newsletters

Did you stumble upon us and find us awesome?

Some of the people featured in KOSU's audio diaries

You can transcribe a meeting and be able to use Otter functionalities like transcription per month, but uploads are limited to a max of 40 minutes each.

Some of the people featured in KQED's audio diaries

If you want to try out Otter, there's a free version that allows for up to 600 minutes of searching for keywords or live note-taking.

To our email list.