One of the hardest endurance adventure races in the lower 48 is right here in Wyoming, in the Wind Rivers. Wind, snow, cold and wolves: This year's 103-mile endurance race in the Wind Rivers was extra 'brutal'.

An interview with Wyoming Public Radio reporter Will Walkey, talking about the current abortion laws in the state. Wyoming becomes first state to ban abortion pills.

A spot by Wyoming Public Radio reporter Caitlin Tan ran on NPR's Here & Now, focusing on optimism and hope. And we offer a bittersweet goodbye to an NPR icon whose life posthumously celebrates a career of groundbreaking journalism, and NPR's coverage of it and makes the pledge. We'd love to cut that in half! If you have any ideas, please share. Our 2023 new member campaign has now yielded 33 new members to add to our 5,149 ongoing members. Thank you!

Congratulations to Scott Simon, host of Saturday's Weekend Edition, for his new book, The Beagles Have Arrived! The plight of 4,000 beagles in a Virginia breeding facility captivated national media. The beagles have a new home, and the beagle rescue movement is growing.

This week, our best listeners are helping us to protect them. The beagles have arrived! The story was captured in a segment of their newsletter.

TikTok dominates the news these days at state, federal, and global levels. Yet TikTok and other similar social media platforms skew negative, often drowning out positive and uplifting stories. NPR addressed this with its podcast series, "Where's the happy news?"

Wyoming Public Radio reporters covered different subjects -- whether a bill or a political dynamic -- and NPR addressed them with stories. NPR's Weekend Edition host Ari Shapiro for his new book, "The Treefort Music Fest." We can over weekends. If you find your radio signal down, you can stream WPM online or on your smartphone. The boxes have arrived! These are about 2 by 12 by 8 inches, and when installed at a remote site, allow our engineers to monitor the signal and often fix problems from Laramie. Over the summer 17 boxes will be installed statewide. Still, there are sites where we do not have the internet connectivity required for the boxes.

The beagles have a new home. We're happy to report that 4,000 beagles in a Virginia breeding facility will be rescued and have a new home. The beagles have arrived! The story was captured in a segment of their newsletter.

Support, all the stories we tell and all the sites we service would not be possible. Thank you for supporting Wyoming Public Media. Without your support, all the stories we tell and all the sites we service would not be possible.

I'll end with a happy thought -- a pack of beagles yelping, barking, and jumping around vying for attention. It was a fun day, and we hope you enjoyed it as much as we did.

Let us know what you think of this program.
