It's popular these days to read a land acknowledgment at public events, but Indigenous leaders and thinkers say that should only be the beginning — “a commitment that should be followed by action.”

Southeast Wyoming could be the new hot spot for rare earth mineral mining in the U.S. Wyoming Public Radio/Mountain West reporter Will Walkey's story about an abortion ban aired on NPR.

Wyoming Public Media's General Manager, Christina Kuzmych, commented, "Please feel free to contact me with any questions or comments at [email]."  Again, thank you for your loyalty and support for WPM.  There are tough times for many listeners.  It makes me happy to hear how much some of you have enjoyed our programming.  As we began the project, we publicized our Days of Dedication within the Cheyenne LWV, and it was fun to read the email thread as members wrote in real time that they had heard the dedication at 8 a.m. or 10 a.m. or 1 p.m.  So, when Cheyenne LWV member Joan Anderson increased her KWUR giving to the Leadership Circle, I knew everyone was as hooked as I was on listening for our Day.

Lamenting they hadn't heard the Day of Dedication because of static or low power, I knew everyone was as concerned as I was about the American Heritage Center.  I was disappointed to discover that for years she has been keeping a notebook of messages we have aired focusing on Wyoming women's history.  Thanks for leadership Circle donor Roz Ander's enthusiasm and dedication to our programming.

In the end, I love the synergy of two nonprofits—Cheyenne League of Women Voters and KUWR—working together to inspire.  I'm sure that when members find themselves really looking forward to the informational quality of the American Heritage Center's Days of Dedication, they will be hooked as I was.

As we approach the deadline, I'm encouraging all of our listeners to spend a little time visiting our daily WPM coverage and travel brochure.  For years our WPM foldout guided listeners through the Wind River Reservation, in Lander, and in the Jackson area.  The Tribal/Rural Journalist position is created through the passion of individuals and institutions interested in reporting on native and rural topics.  Welcome to Hanna Habermann, WPM Tribal/Rural Journalist.  Hanna brings an impressive portfolio of journalistic work and is very much at ease in today's multi-platform news environment.  She has worked on the Wyoming National Guard Historical Society, I discovered that for years she has been keeping a notebook of messages we have aired focusing on Wyoming women's history.  Thanks for leadership Circle donor Roz Ander’s enthusiasm and dedication to our programming.

Want to help us in our mission?  Call to become a member!  Donate.  A hard copy can be obtained by calling 307-766-4240.

Wyoming Public Media is a service of the University of Wyoming.