Dear fellow listeners,

When my family and I arrived in the valley this past June, we were immediately taken with the monumental beauty of the landscape, as well as the amazing sense of community here.

I’ve been overjoyed to hear local recommendations for the best restaurants, hiking trails, community events, and ski gear as my family settles into daily life in what has to be one of the most captivating places in the world. I’ve been happy to receive insightful feedback and input on our programming, hearing all the varied ways residents and visitors alike weave our daily broadcast into their lives during their commute past the roundabout, while filing paperwork, before getting on the gondola, or after an inspiring visit to the Bells. And, I’ve loved learning about the collective history of hard working, can-do, fiercely independent locals—embodied perhaps most perfectly in our station’s late, great founder, Sy Coleman. As we celebrate our fortieth year, I feel strongly that knowing and understanding these daily habits and histories is crucial to leading this organization forward to best serve this valley for the next forty years.

Over the past year, Aspen Public Radio is proud to have provided time-sensitive information in response to the global COVID-19 pandemic and road closures in Glenwood Canyon, alongside in-depth reporting on mental health, climate change, and the impacts of it all to our resort economy.

In August, we hired seasoned journalist Brent Gardner-Smith—a resident of the valley since 1982—to lead our news team. And, we unveiled our “local newscast,” available every weekday on-air and online, on-demand, to share topical issues of local importance. Brent has also started convening monthly on the air with Samuel Bernal of Radio LaTricolor, a local Spanish-language radio station, to discuss various issues disproportionately affecting our valley’s Latinx community, while our news team increases access to Aspen Public Radio News among LaTricolor’s listeners by expanding the number of stories we produce in Spanish for broadcast on 107.1 FM. All of these efforts have helped inform and enrich the lives of everyone who lives, works, and plays in our valley.

We bid farewell this year to four highly-respected Board of Directors members due to term limits, including Katy Frisch, an incredible proponent of education as part of the Aspen School District Board; Dr. Ann Mass, whose local practice has been vital during the pandemic;
Penney Evans-Carruth, who has graciously liaised with our generous National Council members in addition to her full-time work navigating the valley’s busy real estate market; and Kitty Boone, a talented public speaker, innovator, and community mover-and-shaker with the Aspen Institute as Executive Director of the Ideas Festival. I couldn’t be more grateful to each of these brilliant women for their support.

Over the course of the summer, we slowly moved back into hosting in-person events, with our meet-and-greet at the Red Brick Center for the Arts (featuring Palisade peaches!) and tabling at the Aspen Saturday Market (where I met so many enthusiastic listeners and happy dogs, and even took home some Hatch chiles and a Louis Swiss baked good...or two). This Fall we also opened an online store full of Aspen Public Radio items, some retro-inspired, to share with our listeners.

As we look ahead in 2022, our goal is to continue to build a remarkable team of local journalists and public radio professionals to serve this community for another forty years. And it's your commitment to Aspen Public Radio that makes it all possible. We feel so fortunate to be a part of what makes Aspen, Aspen, and to be a source of quality, independent news here in the valley.

Year after year, you help ensure the quality of our trusted broadcast journalism, preserving the important conduit our station is to connecting listeners to pressing national and international news, and growing the station's focus on local journalism and new initiatives, including our goals to deepen environmental coverage; expand our Spanish-language content collaborations; and reimagine how we can play a significant role in keeping you connected to the most pressing lectures, talks, and discussions taking place throughout our community.

Thank you for your support and advocacy, and for the positive impact you’ve had on Aspen Public Radio just by tuning in. I’m so thankful for each and every one of you and for your role in providing this important free news service for Aspen and the valley. I’m looking forward to what we’ll accomplish, together, this 2022.

Cheers,

Breeze Richardson
Executive Director, Aspen Public Radio
Aspen Public Radio hosted a meet-and-greet for our members with our new Executive Director on the Red Brick Lawn in Aspen. Attendees enjoyed refreshments and Palisade peaches on a perfectly warm and sunny day.

ASPEN PUBLIC RADIO WOULD LIKE TO THANK OUR COMMUNITY FOR MAKING OUR WORK POSSIBLE

The Dogs

Our office “paw-leagues” Trudy, Shasta, Yukon, and Dolly have been an integral part of supporting the Aspen Public Radio team in 2021, both during work-from-home and at the station.
Aspen Public Radio is honored to be a vital service and source of news and emergency updates for our community.

Thanks to Coldwell Banker Mason Morse, we tabled at the Aspen Saturday Market to interact with listeners in-person (and furry friends, too!) and raise funds in support of our essential news service. Photo by Breeze Richardson / Aspen Public Radio

In August 2021, we welcomed a group of inquisitive fifth grade students from Access Afterschool summer camp inside our studios--each of them were able to hear and voice their names on the air, and also learn more about the sound of our station. Photo by Lisa DeLosso / Aspen Public Radio
Donated 50 pairs of Aspen Public Radio socks to the Aspen Jewish Congregation’s housing stability basket program

Partnered with CORE to participate in “Stories of Climate Change / Historias del Cambio Climático,” a crowdsourced mural project featuring photographs and audio stories about how people here in the valley have been personally affected by climate change

Collaborated with Challenge Aspen to host a free, virtual, community-wide event featuring NPR All Things Considered Host, Mary Louise Kelly, in a discussion about her work, life, and adapting to hearing loss as an audio journalist

Worked with local organizations Holy Cross Energy and Basalt Bike & Ski to give away an e-bike as part of our Spring 2021 Membership Drive. We also worked with Eagle Crest Nursery to provide messaging about and give away gift cards to their local nursery

Worked with local concert venue Belly Up Aspen to give away pairs of tickets as part of our Summer 2021 Membership Drive

Collaborated with the Aspen Chamber Resort Association to make Aspen Field Notes, featuring the artwork of local artists, available to our listeners

Hosted fifth grade students with the Access Afterschool summer camp program for children in the Aspen School District

Partnered with Aspen Snowmass and Aspen Skiing Company to give away skis and restaurant gift certificates as part of our Fall 2021 Membership Drive. We also shared local books from CCY Architects, photographer and filmmaker Pete McBride, and ACES with our listeners

Worked with more than one-hundred local businesses, organizations, and nonprofits, including Aspen Valley Land Trust, Theatre Aspen, the Buddy Program, ACES, and more to promote their virtual events and services on the air
Reporting and Local News

- The hiring of Brent Gardner-Smith, a highly-respected local journalist with decades of experience in audio and print journalism, to lead our reporting efforts as news director.

- Shared our multi-part environmentally-focused series, “In The Woods: Trees and Climate Change in the Roaring Fork Valley,” focusing on climate change by examining its effects on native trees and forests in our region.

- Our new Outdoor Report, a weekday roundup of summer activities and highlights in the valley, and our beloved Ski Report, sharing the latest updates from local resorts, backcountry destinations, nordic grooming, snow and avalanche data, and more.

- Eleanor Bennett’s discussion with local students learning about agriculture at Highwater Farms in Silt.

- Reporting from the Mountain West News Bureau, as well as our Colorado State Capitol reporter, Scott Franz, and reporter Alex Hager’s continued contributions to the river network.

- A local audio postcard series, “A Collage Of Creative Voices,” focusing on youth creativity during the pandemic, as reported by Edlis Neeson Arts & Culture reporter Kirsten Dobroth.

- Coverage of the Aspen Mayoral and City Council spring 2021 elections, as well as the Glenwood Springs City Council spring 2021 election.

- Our weekday Local Newscast to give listeners more opportunities to tune in to local news on-the-go.

- Reporter Halle Zander’s coverage of the Pandora’s expansion on Aspen Mountain.

- Fact-based COVID-19 resources on our website to answer questions about testing and vaccine availability.

- Online Spanish-language translation of stories and collaboration with local Spanish-language radio station, Radio La Tricolor, to serve our valley’s Latinx population.
Deanne Vitrac-Kessler, left, and Buffalo Child, center, stopped by our station to chat with Aspen Public Radio’s Eleanor Bennett about the Aspen Indigenous Foundation and the Shining Mountains Film Festival, featuring films and documentaries celebrating Native American culture and history at the Wheeler Opera House. Aspen Public Radio hired Brent Gardner-Smith, a highly-respected local journalist with decades of experience in audio and print journalism, to lead our reporting efforts as news director. He arrived in the Valley in 1982—his first ski pass photo is seen here. Photo courtesy Brent Gardner-Smith

Aspen Public Radio’s Eleanor Bennett is a longtime local, sharing, “growing up in the valley listening to KAJX in my parents’ car on the way to school, I learned the power and urgency of community storytelling.” Her passion for local journalism is evident in her daily reporting as “the voice” of Aspen Public Radio during Morning Edition, weekdays from 6:00 to 9:00 a.m. Photo courtesy Eleanor Bennett
Supporting the belief that storytelling can foster cross-cultural understanding and connection within our diverse community, we’re proud to have presented “Immigrant Voices 2021,” an annual event produced by English in Action which provides the opportunity for local immigrant community members to share a part of their lives with a wider audience. Programming and Special Events

- Broadcasted our mental health series, “High Risk At High Altitude,” to address locals’ concerns about mental health issues that have been exacerbated during the pandemic; we collected local community members’ personal stories for this series.

- Hosted a National Council virtual event featuring NPR White House Correspondent Tamara Keith, as generously sponsored by Obermeyer Wood Investments.

- Continued airing Classical Music From Aspen, featuring interviews, music, and performances with Chris Mohr and the Aspen Music Festival and School.

- Hosted a free Members Meet-And-Greet and open house at the station with our new executive director, Breeze Richardson, to introduce her to our community, and vice-versa.

- Presented a virtual evening in, supporting the power of local journalism and independent film, with a free virtual screening of Storm Lake: A Newspaper. A Family. A Community. alongside our friends at Aspen Film.

- Announced a free virtual summer discussion featuring 1A’s Jenn White and Roaring Fork Show Up founder, Sajari Simmons, to highlight Simmons’ work to grow anti-racism movements in the valley.

- Served as a media partner for Aspen Words’ Writers in Residence Summer 2021 event series on the Red Brick lawn, and broadcast these discussions with renowned authors as part of our Sunday Specials series.

- Presented English in Action’s Immigrant Voices event on Thanksgiving Day.

- Collaborated with Challenge Aspen to host a free, virtual, community-wide event featuring NPR All Things Considered Host, Mary Louise Kelly, in a discussion about her work, life, and adapting to hearing loss as an audio journalist.
We’d like to thank the local businesses and organizations that supported Aspen Public Radio through their generous underwriting in 2021.

In 2021, vehicle donations accounted for over $30,000 in revenue for Aspen Public Radio. Thank you to our donors!
Aspen Public Radio is a rural public radio station that is one of the most relied-upon news institutions in the Roaring Fork Valley of Colorado serving Pitkin, Eagle, and Garfield counties.

We were founded in 1981 by Isaiah “Sy” Coleman after a fateful climb up Watson Divide to see if he could hear anything on the lower dial of his FM radio. Sy vowed to bring NPR and public radio programming to the valley from that day forward.

Now in our fortieth year of service to the valley, we have over 1,500 members who support us annually with a donation, as well as an average of 18,000 weekly listeners, and a weekly newsletter that is distributed to more than 2,500 unique email addresses around the world. Our audience includes individuals of all ages, races, and income levels.

We engage and connect with our listeners on a meaningful level by spurring dialogue and discourse to foster understanding, knowledge, empathy, and respect. Aspen Public Radio is committed to providing everyone who lives, works, and plays in the Roaring Fork Valley with trustworthy coverage that includes local, regional, national, and international news, all rooted in a perspective that highlights the issues and new ideas being explored throughout this community.

Thank you to Sy and to all of the incredible volunteers, hosts, DJs, supporters, music lovers, donors, listeners, and community members who have made our work possible.

Please enjoy this selection of photos as we reminisce on four decades of service in the valley.

In 2021, Aspen Public Radio was featured in Aspen Skiing Company’s 75th Anniversary Countdown on social media. SkiCo shared the story of our founder, Sy Coleman, in honor of the 40th anniversary of our origins as Western Colorado’s first public radio station. Thank you to SkiCo for celebrating Sy and and the locals who built this station!
Thank you for supporting Aspen Public Radio.

Your support is a direct reflection of our community’s investment in quality journalism. We appreciate your dedication to providing informative news and programming each and every day for our listeners.

You rely on news from Aspen Public Radio every day, and we depend on support from listeners like you. Make your investment in another year of high-quality journalism and all of the programs you love at aspenpublicradio.org.
