Henry Louis Gates, Jr. maps the roots of director Spike Lee and actor Kristin Chenoweth. Moving across Europe and the American South, Gates introduces his guests to ancestors who used their creativity to build a future for their families.

9pm Billy The Kid: American Experience

On April 28, 1881, 21-year-old Henry McCarty, alias Billy the Kid, just days from being hanged for murder, outfoxed his jailors and electrified the nation with the latest in a long line of daring escapes. An outlaw with a deadly reputation, the young man was finally gunned down by an ambitious sheriff just a few weeks later. The felling of one of the most notorious criminals of the age was instantly national news. First demonized by the lawman who killed him, he was soon mythologized by a never-ending stream of dime store romances and big-screen dramas. But in all the tellings, Billy the Kid's real story has been obscured. Born to impoverished Irish immigrants, the Kid led a hardscrabble life that became harder still when his mother died of tuberculosis. He came of age in a lawless corner of New Mexico, where an Irish immigrant ring held a vice-like grip on all money-making endeavors and the Mexican population was frequently cheated out of their property without recourse to the courts. Caught in the middle of a many centuries old conflict, the Kid captured national attention with his reckless violence. His fascination with Mexican culture, his flair for Spanish and his disdain for the Anglo authorities made him a hero of sorts to the Hispanic community, who hid him when the law came looking and mourned him most when he was gone.

10pm Al Capone: Icon

Al Capone - the quintessential self-made American man, ruthless killer or both? Just his name sparks images of pin-stripe suits and bloody violence. To this day, Americans are fascinated by this celebrity gangster. The question is why?

8pm Hetty Wainthropp Investigates (Hd)

The Bearded Lady

Hetty wakes up to her 60th birthday and decides retirement is not for her, "I'm going to make myself count." She gets a job in a local sub-post office, where she becomes suspicious of a young couple, Wayne and Sandy, who are claiming cash on behalf of a pensioner. Enlisting the aid of Geoffrey Shawcross, a 16-year-old whom she catches shop-lifting, Hetty determines to investigate. Geoffrey follows them to a derelict mill, where he discovers the body of Mary, a bag lady. Wayne and Sandy deny killing Mary but admit to using her pension book for cash. Hetty is shocked, but she has decided she has a knack for investigation. She sets up as a private eye and the story appears in the local newspaper. But why does her first client, Mr Harkness, send her on a wild-goose chase to a derelict cottage in the middle of nowhere? What on earth is a computer disk doing in the bag lady's possessions? And is there any connection between her death and the death of her old neighbour, Professor Fisher, burnt to death in a fire at Lake Windermere?

Habitat Islands and Wildlife Corridors

Habitat islands are areas of various sizes which should contain all the necessities for a certain species or multiple species of wildlife to survive and thrive. But too often these islands are not large enough to provide long-term support for the animals who live within. Surrounding these islands exist areas not hospitable to wildlife, and wildlife which naturally venture beyond the confines of their habitats are often at risk of conflict with humans and/or human development. The concept of wildlife corridors has become a way to direct animal movement away from, or safely through, dangers caused by humans. As human beings continue to dominate the landscape, habitat islands and wildlife corridors will become increasingly necessary for the survival of our many wild species.

9pm Surviving 9/11: Where We Stand

At its heart, this documentary is a depiction of resilience found in the aftermath of 9/11. Following ten intimate personal accounts, 'Surviving 9/11: Where We Stand' reflects on strength survivors have continuously found in community and themselves. They share experiences marked indelibly not only by loss, but also by optimism, and an enduring commitment to life in spite of tragedy. The documentary is a mirror to our current moment of ongoing global crisis and the hope that can be found even in the darkest of times. Yet, while the message of the film resonates at any moment, it carries particular poignancy in the late summer/early fall, when the anniversary of 9/11 invites reflection and remembrance.

Separating fact from fiction, this program explores the last pair of outlaws to flee on horseback into a setting sun.

10pm American Masters

Julia Alvarez: A Life Reimagined

Julia Alvarez: A Life Reimagined is a documentary film about the life and work of Julia Alvarez, one of America's most celebrated Latina writers. Alvarez burst onto the literary scene in 1991 with her semi-autobiographical novel, How the Garcia Sisters Lost Their Accents, to great acclaim, followed by In the Time of the Butterflies (1994), which raised global awareness about three sisters assassinated by Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo, and was made into a major motion picture. Her most recent novel, Afterlife, explores the universal issues of aging, loss and healing, and joins the debate about Latino immigrants in the United States. Called "a writer of gigantic storytelling talent, and exquisitely composed prose," Alvarez has helped blaze the trail for generations of Latina/o authors helping transform American culture and literature. Now 72 years old, she feels that time is running out to tell all of the stories still within her. The film will explore her childhood in the Dominican Republic, her complex family dynamics, the lifelong impact of their escape from the dictatorship, her feelings of displacement, hybridity and loss - and how she transforms all of this, in a nuanced, complex writing voice - into poetry, essays and novels.

9pm Watkins Glen: The Street Years 1948-1952 (WSKG)

In 1948, a young law student and sports-car enthusiast named Cameron Argetsinger conceived an idea to stage a European-style road race through a small village nestled in the Finger Lakes region of upstate New York. Watkins Glen: The Street Years chronicles the first five years of this perilous race through narrow streets on a challenging course comprised of asphalt, cement and dirt roads that ran through and encircled the village. Based on famous European Grand Prix courses in Monaco and Italy, where cars speed through the small city streets, the unique "town track" differed from America's traditional oval-track events. This documentary retraces history with personal accounts from race founder Argetsinger, along with drivers and residents of Watkins Glen. In addition, rare photographs and newsreel footage capture the excitement, adventure and tragic drama of one of the sport's greatest stories.

Outdoor Ethics

Spending time outside and connecting with nature and wildlife can be a great joy for many people. That privilege of being outdoors comes with a great responsibility: learning and abiding by a proper set of "outdoor ethics". By understanding the effects of all of your actions, and doing your best to prevent those actions from having negative consequences on wildlife and the environment, you are being a responsible recreationist. Knowing that you are a guest in the wild, and in the homes of wild animals, is a great first step in curating a positive outdoor ethic.
