Intelligence Squared U.S. Debates: Are the Elites to Blame for the Trump Phenomenon? Airs Sunday, October 23, at 6 p.m. The elites of both parties have expressed contempt for Donald Trump, and Trump has succeeded in part by channeling his voters' contempt for the elites. Does support for Trump reflect an uninformed populism and misplaced anger by a large swath of the American electorate? Or have the elites failed to empathize with their struggles, and failed to craft effective policies to help them cope? The debaters are Timothy Carney, Jennifer Rubin, Ben Domenech, and Bret Stephens.

Health Matters: Anger

Airs Thursday, October 27, at 6 p.m. Anger is a natural emotion, but left unchecked, it can affect mental and physical health. Intelligence Squared U.S. Debates: Climate Change: Has the EPA gone overboard?

Airs Sunday, October 30, at 6 p.m. Reducing carbon emissions is clearly good for the environment but often imposes substantial costs, which can affect everyone indirectly through higher energy costs, slower economic growth, reduced employment, and lower business profits. Has the Environmental Protection Agency considered the costs and benefits of its regulatory mandates fairly and appropriately? Is its Clean Power Plan a bold initiative to reduce carbon pollution at power plants, or an unconstitutional usurpation of power?

Louisiana Public Square: Election 2016

Airs Sunday, November 6, at 6 p.m. What concerns are on citizens' minds as they go to the polls this fall? The presidential election may be getting all of the attention, but Louisiana residents will be making several important decisions at the ballot box in November. The U.S. Senate seat left up for grabs by retiring Sen. David Vitter has drawn a field of 24 candidates. Louisianians in the south- and northwest parts of the state will also be voting on congressmen. So, what national concerns are on citizens' minds as they go to the polls this fall?

Intelligence Squared U.S. Debates: Is Big Pharma Responsible For Rising Health Care Costs Airs Sunday, November 13, at 6 p.m. Health care costs in the U.S. are nearly double what other rich countries spend. We read of drug therapies that cost $100,000 a year or more, and of large drug price increases. Is this a major driver of excessive health care costs? Or is it a by-product of the huge costs of getting new drugs approved? Has big pharma delivered drugs that reduce the need for costly surgeries, which extend life and improve its quality? Or do they deserve the blame that has been leveled against them?

History Matters: "Happy Birthday to the Marine Corps"

Airs Tuesday, November 8, at 7:45 a.m. Commentator Gary Joiner celebrates the Birthday of the "Marine Corps" this week.

Questions will be taken at 1-800-552-8502

With Good Reason: Messages From a Forgotten Troopship

Airs Thursday, November 10, at 7 p.m. In the 1960s, it took almost three weeks to cross the sea from America to Vietnam. Three weeks for young men in crowded cabins with salt water showers and absolutely nothing to do but think about home, the war, and what might be next. In this Memorial Day special episode we focus on a single troopship, the General Nelson M. Walker, and a few of the soldiers who traveled on it.

Red River Radio Spotlight: Acceptable Losses at the Meadows.

Intelligence Squared U.S. Debates: Has Gerrymandering Destroyed the Political Middle Airs Sunday, December 4, at 6 p.m. It is alleged that the practice of gerrymandering—dividing election districts into units to favor a particular group—subverts democracy by making congressional districts "safe" for one party or the other. As a result, only those voting in primaries are in effect choosing our representatives. Are primary voters more extreme in their views, and therefore pulling democrats to the left and republicans to the right? Or is the impact of gerrymandering overblown?

College Choice: The Value of It All

Airs Sunday, December 11, at 6 p.m. When young adults set out to pick a college back in 2010 and 2011, they were making a decision of a lifetime amid big financial obstacles: soaring tuition and the great recession. And as they progressed through their college careers, a debate over the value of college grew louder.
