Monthly Conversation With Mitch Daniels: False Equivalence After Charlottesville?

Purdue' s President says he doesn' t agree his earlier comment that left-wing groups are responsible for much of the violence on college campuses in the last two years looks like a case of false equivalence following the events of Charlottesville, VA.

Keeping Teachers

Friday, September 8 at 7 p.m. on WBAA News on 105.9 FM and AM 920

There may be nothing more important in the educational life of a child than having effective teachers, but U.S. schools are struggling to attract and keep them. The problem is most acute in rural areas, where kids may learn math from a social studies teacher. In urban schools, the teachers most likely to leave are black men, who make up just 2 percent of teachers. This APM Reports documentary tells two separate but connected stories about the teachers these schools desperately need, but can't hold on to: black men and those willing to work in rural areas. There are surprising similarities in why schools struggle to attract and keep these teachers that are particularly relevant now, when the divides between urban and rural — and white and black — are getting so much attention.

The show, “Shadow Class” had to be reworked after President Trump’ s announcement today about the end of DACA, and will air at a future time.
